

MORNING APPEAL.

Saturday.....August 6, 1887.

THE DEATH VALLEY BO-NANZA.

Some of our readers who intend taking a trip there this Fall, might not know the particulars, and we will, therefore, give the facts, as we have been able to obtain them. Some years ago a man named Breyfogle, an emigrant, brought into the California towns specimens of immensely rich gold quartz, a very large percentage being pure metal. He reported that he found them in or near Death Valley and that the deposits from which they were obtained were apparently inexhaustible in extent. A tremendous excitement was precipitated. Expedition after expedition was sent out to discover the spot, and as often failed of success. Finally, when the wonderful story had about passed from the public mind, and the matter had come to be considered as a myth. Mr. Breyfogle—who faith in eventually realizing the fruits of his discovery, never wavered—astonished the mining world a second time by the announcement that he had succeeded again in finding the place, in confirmation of which a second collection of immense rich specimens were exhibited. But he was attacked by the Indians soon after he began taking out the precious nuggets, and driven out of the country a cripple for life. And then he seems to have again been bewildered as to locality, and frequently failed in attempts to again find the place. If there is anything to be found in or about the Death Valley country, the expedition that is to start out in the Fall, will undoubtedly find it, as it will be composed of practical miners, and intelligent and determined men.—Pioche Record.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Considerable discussion is being caused all over the country by the able interesting paper of Governor Foraker, of Ohio, contributed to the August number of "The Forum," on that vital question, "The Return of the Republican Party," in which the great issues of the day are forcibly and congenitally presented. The Governor writes like a reasoner and Statesman, showing that the two important and overshadowing questions of the day, from a Republican and patriotic standpoint, are the suppressed colored vote of the South, and the protective tariff, neither of which can ever possibly have proper treatment at the hands of the reactionary Democracy. One of the most striking and convincing of Governor Foraker's arguments is when he shows that Georgia cast only 28,000 votes for ten Members of Congress, while the number in Ohio, not more populous than Georgia, was upon a total vote of 300,000 for ten Congressmen. And upon this basis he deduced the proposition that the Solid South robbed Blaine and Logan of 38 electoral votes, defeating them and fraudulently electing Grover Cleveland. The Governor gives facts and figures to prove the ruinous policy of free trade as it worked under a Democratic Administration, in 1860 and prior thereto, and the benefits derived subsequent to that period from the distinctively Republican doctrine of the protection to American industries and interests.

These are startling figures and startling arguments, and will afford interesting reading to everybody interested in the issues of 1888.

Another Through Line.

As the Union Pacific now takes freight and passengers to and from San Francisco by way of Portland, Oregon, independent of the Central Pacific, it is believed that the latter road will form an alliance with the Northwestern, which now has a road complete within 400 miles of Ogden. Should the Central Pacific and Northwestern combine the road would be built through Wyoming to Ogden at once, and a new through line established. The proposed road from this place north would doubtless be also built at an early day, and much of the trade of eastern Oregon and Idaho diverted to the Central Pacific.

—The APPEAL editor has received a letter from the bicycle club giving him his status as an honorary member. He can be present at the meetings, but cannot debate, vote or pay assessments. These are mixed blessings.
